STINGERS

Stinger basketball teams are making a move

This past week, the Concordia Stinger basketball teams both took their first steps towards establishing themselves in playoff positions.

The women's team won both its games this week. Last Thursday the Stingers defeated the McGill Martlets 68-67. The team trailed the entire game, but with two minutes left, captain Marie-Pier Veilleux hit a three-point basket to bring Concordia within one point of McGill. Finally, with a half a second left on the clock Rosie Douglas was fouled and was able to complete both her foul shots for the victory.

On Saturday, the Stingers defeated the Bishop's Gaiters 75-54. Stinger, Douglas says the Bishop's game was a blowout by the Stingers.

We realized that after we lost to them last week, we should be able to play past their level with determination and confidence," said Douglas.

The win puts the women's basketball team into a solid second-place position with 5-5 record. The Stingers next home game is Saturday at 6 p.m. versus McGill.

The men's basketball team had its first win of the regular season blowing over the Bishop's Gaiters 60-55. The men's team has had trouble landing the wins this season and this victory might just start a trend in the opposite direction. The win puts the Stingers just two points out of a playoff position, right behind Bishop's. Their next home game is Saturday at 8 p.m. versus McGill.

Concordia Athletes of the Week

Marie-Pier Veilleux of the women's basketball team and Philippe Paris of the men's hockey team have been named Concordia Stinger athletes of the week for the period ending Feb. 3.

Veilleux, a fourth-year guard, had 28 points and 11 rebounds over the week. On Thursday in a 68-67 win over the McGill Martlets, Veilleux had 14 points and eight rebounds and on Saturday in a 75-54 victory over the Bishop's Gaiters, she had 14 points and three rebounds. A native of Amos, Que., Veilleux is an economics major at Concordia.

Paris, a first-year right wing, had two goals and one assist in a 8-5 defeat of the Ryerson Rams on Saturday. The 20 year old is a native of Drummondville, Que., and is attending the John Molson School of Business, majoring in administration.
